

Preventative Health Services Notification

As a result of the Affordable Care Act signed into law this past year, all health insurance plans must provide coverage for certain preventative services. If your plan is subject to these new requirements, you would not have to pay a co-payment, co-insurance or deductible to receive preventative health services, such as recommended screenings, vaccinations and counseling. If you are in such a health plan, this provision will affect you as soon as your plan begins its first new "plan year" or "policy year" on or after September 23, 2010.

*Be aware that your plan can require you to pay some costs of the office visit, if the preventative service is not the primary purpose of the visit, or if your doctor bills you for the preventative services separately from the office visit.

So that we may specifically address your medical concerns, please take a moment to list for us any specific health related issues you wish to discuss with your Health Care Provider at today's visit.
